You've changed the way you work We've evolved the way we support

Your world, our world, the business world has faced some of its biggest challenges to date. With these challenges Chapter Mental Health has evolved to ensure we support every one of your people to build strength and resilience no matter what lies ahead...

Why Invest in Mental Health?

Research¹ published by Deloitte in 2020 shows that for businesses investing into the mental health of their employees, the average return on that investment is £5 for every £1 spent, with figures as high as £9 for every £1 spent in some cases. Engaging Chapter to provide a bespoke training, coaching and support package to support and improve the mental health and well-being of your employees is therefore an essential business investment. Additionally, by engaging Chapter, a mental health charity, you know that your investment will go beyond providing a worthwhile return within your business; you will also be supporting our work in the wider local community.

Why Chapter?

With nearly 30 years' experience, Chapter know a thing or two about mental health. By choosing Chapter, a mental health charity, as your provider for mental health training and support, you know that your investment will go beyond providing a worthwhile return within your business; you will also be making an investment in local communities. As a charity, we invest all profits we receive from delivering business services straight back into our community projects, supporting people to better manage their mental health, recover from mental illness, and reach their best potential.

Working in Partnership

Our partnership approach extends beyond the work we do directly with you, into partnerships with other organisations that will enable us to provide you with a tailor-made support and training package to meet your specific needs.

For example, we can bring in our HR partners to support you in a co-ordinated approach to recruitment and retention, as well as to ensure your policies and procedures support the mental health and wellbeing of your employees beyond the minimum legal requirements in a way that truly makes you an employer of choice. First Aid Training is another area that can be looked at holistically - covering both physical and mental health first aid, so we work with carefully selected partners to allow us to offer you a comprehensive package covering both aspects.

Our bespoke wellbeing solutions can support you with:

Staff retention

Staff turnover caused by mental health issues in the workplace cost UK employers between £3.1bn² and £8bn³ per year. To help your staff feel valued and you to retain valuable employees in your business, we can support you in creating and implementing workplace systems, procedures and practices that promote mental health and wellbeing. We can also train your staff in individual wellbeing practices and, should anyone be affected by mental ill-health, provide targeted support.

Staff recruitment and onboarding

We can provide consultancy support throughout your recruitment and staff onboarding process, from your advertising and interview processes all the way through to health questionnaires and references-taking. Getting this process right ensures not only that you comply with essential legislation, but that your employer brand is strong and attracts the best candidates into your business.

Leadership and other professional development

Equipping your managers, senior leaders and employees at all levels of the business with the skills and knowledge to recognise symptoms of mental ill-health, offer support where it is needed, signpost to other sources of support and to be sensitive and supportive managers, leaders or co-workers is an essential element of your employees' professional development. Through tailor-made training solutions consisting of a combination of bespoke and accredited courses and workshops, we support you in upskilling your employees, providing them with accredited training certification, improving working relationships and reducing workplace conflict.

Increased productivity

Lost productivity attributed to "presenteeism" caused by mental ill-health has been reported to cost UK businesses anywhere from £17bn³ to £29.3bn⁴. It makes sense to provide your employees with tools and support to help them be at their best while they are at work and to use their leisure time in ways that are conducive to mental well-being.

Business growth

Extensive research from the field of positive psychology⁴ shows that when people are mentally well, they are likely to be more creative and better at problem-solving, experience more positive relationships and have a more positive outlook. This, coupled with the increased productivity benefits from having employees who are mentally well, supports business growth. By providing you with bespoke training and support packages to underpin your employees' mental health and well-being, we can help you foster a working environment in which employees, and consequently your business, are able to flourish.

Business restructure

From time to time, it is necessary for businesses to undergo restructuring processes and difficult decisions have to be made. During these times, it is more crucial than ever for employees remaining within the business, either in their existing or new roles, to feel valued and supported. It is also important from a corporate social responsibility perspective for the business to support the mental health and well-being of those employees who will unfortunately lose out in the process, providing them not only with practical tools to find alternative employment, but also with the mental resilience and well-being toolkit to overcome the challenge and allow them to thrive beyond the current circumstances.

Should your business find itself in this situation, we can help you underpin this transition process with bespoke training, coaching and support solutions suited to your specific circumstances.
